RESOURCE GUIDE

to the Great Floods of 2016

LOUISIANA

Published May 2017
The purpose of this guide is to serve as a resource for Disaster Case Managers, Community Recovery Planning processes, and to point out the range of potential resources available or organizations with whom one might partner to affect recovery in the aftermath of the Great Floods of 2016.

The information contained in this document was gathered from the websites of the organizations listed in the guide and from organizational representatives. The information taken from websites has not been vetted for accuracy. Links to websites are provided where they are available.

Section 1 of the Louisiana Disaster Recovery Alliance’s (LDRA) Resource Guide explains the mission of this organization, which was created as a result of the flooding across the state. It also lists the philanthropic organizations that are members of the LDRA and provides background information on the respective mission and goals of each member organization.

Sections 2-4 of the Resource Guide contain information on a selection of nonprofit organizations that have worked or are still working with populations affected by the flooding events. This is a reference tool to understand who might be able to provide assistance in each impacted community. These sections do not include the names of all nonprofit organizations working with disaster survivors.

Section 5 contains information on a selection of Louisiana-based foundations that have created flood relief funds and are actively guiding philanthropic interests in relief and recovery.

Louisiana Disaster Recovery Alliance (LDRA)
The Louisiana Disaster Recovery Alliance (LDRA) is a consortium of Louisiana-based private, community, and corporate foundations and donors that was founded to address issues of disaster recovery and resilience and reduce levels of risk and vulnerability across the state in the face of repetitive events. This consortium brings Louisiana’s foundation community together with federal and state government partners in a first-of-its-kind Public/Private Partnership that takes a long-term approach to building resilience at every phase of the disaster life cycle (preparedness, response, recovery, and mitigation). As a cross-sector collaboration, LDRA uses the resources and strengths of each member to make informed and innovative decisions. The vision of this group is to examine the threats facing Louisiana with a long-term lens and to produce a set of innovative, locally-specific solutions that will rebuild healthy, sustainable, and resilient communities.

The Great Flood of 2016 brought tragedy to our state. It also presented the philanthropic sector with an opportunity to collaborate, draw on past disaster grant-making experience, and demonstrate knowledge gained from past events. The partners to this collaborative effort, including the state and federal government, are committed to work together to make smart investments in communities.

In support of this goal, the Louisiana Disaster Recovery Alliance has created a joint fund for recovery and welcomes donations which will be put to use in support of building a more resilient Louisiana.

The Louisiana Disaster Recovery Alliance will use its collective power to advocate and raise awareness about a disaster of great size and scale that is impacting our state. The group’s goal is to leverage resources from many sectors and use them to meet pressing community resilience and recovery needs and to build capacity and increase the performance of all partners to the process.
Louisiana Disaster Recovery Alliance (LDRA)

Baton Rouge, LA
http://www.louisianarecoveryalliance.org/

This consortium brings Louisiana’s foundation community together with federal and state government partners including agencies of the State of Louisiana (Governor’s Office of Homeland Security and Preparedness, Office of Community Development - Disaster Recovery Unit, and Louisiana Economic Development) and federal government agencies involved with the National Disaster Recovery Framework – such as the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Department of Commerce, Department of the Interior, Department of Health and Human Services, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and the Environmental Protection Agency. Government partners have agreed to work in concert with the philanthropic sector and to inform them about emerging needs and government investments in resilience and recovery, creating opportunities to leverage resources, and ensure that any duplication of efforts is avoided. This cross-sector collaboration gives philanthropy a strong voice in the crafting of policy recommendations and the ability to share their unique understanding of culture and context with government partners. The goal of the Louisiana Disaster Recovery Alliance is to create positive system-wide change and cooperation that will lead to holistic solutions and sustainable recovery efforts — building local capacity and strengthening local resilience.

Nonprofits
Nonprofit Organizations and their Contribution to Long-Term Recovery

There is a difference between disaster response and all the activities that comprise disaster recovery after a catastrophe. Disaster response encompasses a set of clear-cut needs and a group of first response organizations armed with the requisite expertise, training and preparation, operational plans and processes, as well as the funding to carry out this work. It is fast-paced and heroic — often life-saving, receiving a lot of media attention which translates into donations for nonprofit assistance initiatives and programs, the mobilization of volunteers, and heightened awareness amongst the general public. Organizations and individuals alike feel the call to make a difference with their time, their money, and their special skills.

Unfortunately, the initial altruism and generous influx of resources that media scrutiny brings to stricken communities tapers off dramatically when the cameras are gone, and the hard work of reconstructing communities and reconstituting their social fabric begins.

This Resource Guide encompasses a list of non-profit organizations that assisted during the response phase, as well as those still at work now as recovery efforts deepen and intensify. The non-profits that assisted during response may no longer have programs and funding streams specifically aimed at flood survivors, but have a history of assisting and remain dedicated partners in their communities in each instance where a need arises and they can provide aid. Many are working hand-in-hand with disaster case managers to solve difficult problems faced by individual households. In many instances, these groups might be good partners to recovery efforts as these are now being planned. The ability to identify many different potential partners is of advantage to communities and organizations as they consider their options and wonder about the best path to resourcing projects and ideas that are essential components of their recovery plans.

What is Disaster Case Management?

Disaster Case Management (DCM) provides relief to disaster survivors by connecting them with the resources and services of multiple agencies (voluntary, faith-based, and nonprofit organizations), including the development of individual recovery plans that incorporate sustainable assistance for the household’s recovery. DCM is a time-limited process that involves a partnership between a case manager and a disaster survivor (also known as a “client”) to develop and carry out a Disaster Recovery Plan. This partnership provides the client with a single point of contact to facilitate access to a broad range of resources. The process involves an assessment of the client’s verified disaster-caused unmet needs, development of a goal-oriented plan that outlines the steps necessary to achieve recovery, organization and coordination of information on available resources that match the disaster-caused unmet needs, the monitoring of progress toward reaching the recovery plan goals, and – when necessary – client advocacy. When indicated, the unmet needs of clients will be referred to the Long Term Recovery Groups by the Case Manager.

Catholic Charities’ case managers also help clients connect to needed services, provide referrals to the appropriate agencies, and access government benefits – FEMA, SNAP and SBA applications and appeals, mental health services, housing, home repairs, transportation, and other essential services.”

Disaster relief has become a prominent part of the Society's charitable efforts as we continue reaching out to the men, women, and children who were displaced by Hurricane Katrina. Our Dining Room, St. Vincent de Paul Thrift stores, toiletry items and other programs can assist survivors. Our emergency shelters for men, our shelter for women and children, and our homeless day center are also resources. The St. Vincent de Paul Community Pharmacy, which helps thousands of people with their prescription medications annually can help victims of a disaster. Our Uniforms for Kids program has distributed thousands of school uniforms free of charge to displaced school children. We continue to study other needs we can fill with our basic infrastructure and are prepared to help during the next disaster. Our philosophy has been to build on our core strengths: food services, thrift stores/distribution center, uniform distribution, prescription medicines, shelter for the homeless, and other services.

Cajun Navy

http://cajunnavy.net/

In August of 2016, historic flooding struck South Louisiana after weeks of heavy rain caused several rivers and waterways to crest well above flood stage. The days that followed left thousands of families struggling to escape rising flood waters and, eventually, to rebuild in the midst of the wreckage the floodwaters left behind. Just when things seemed to be at their worst – in came the Cajun Navy. A parade of trucks pulling trailers could be seen lining the state’s highways as native Louisianans armed with trademark white shrimp boots and boats of all shapes and sizes descended upon the hardest hit areas to help transport supplies, rescue trapped families, and bring much-needed smiles to the communities that needed them most. As flood waters rose and eventually receded, the Cajun Navy became an unofficial mascot for the unbreakable resolve and charitable spirit that defines Louisianans in times of despair. Photos of the Cajun Navy and its unlikely fleet spread across social media and helped raise awareness and support for flood victims across the country. Our mission is to support Louisiana flood victims at the local level while also honoring the efforts of the men and women of the Cajun Navy who answered their neighbors’ calls when they were needed most.

Disaster relief has become a prominent part of the Society's charitable efforts as we continue reaching out to the men, women, and children who were displaced by Hurricane Katrina. Our emergency shelters for men, our shelter for women and children, and our homeless day center are also resources. The St. Vincent de Paul Community Pharmacy, which helps thousands of people with their prescription medications annually can help victims of a disaster. Our Uniforms for Kids program has distributed thousands of school... uniforms free of charge to displaced school children. We continue to study other needs we can fill with our basic infrastructure and are prepared to help during the next disaster. Vulnerable Populations
Vulnerable Populations

The conceptual framework of vulnerability represents the most significant theoretical contribution to the field of disaster management in recent decades. It has been widely embraced by scholars and practitioners working throughout the field of disaster recovery and now constitutes a major pillar of the burgeoning model of sustainable disaster recovery. This approach to understanding the socially-generated needs that must be addressed during the disaster recovery process focuses on the interaction between nature and society and how it produces the vulnerability of places, and the social and economic impacts of disasters on vulnerable groups.

The most vital component of this framework is the charge to take action to reduce vulnerability – be it to infrastructure, institutions, the economy, the environment, or situations confronting human beings and human society. Societal structures (poverty, race and class, geography, environment, poor governance) are seen to increase the exposure of certain marginalized groups and communities within a society in this view, to the degree that their ability to react to a threat is severely hampered. These societal constraints actually serve to amplify the impact of a disaster on these groups, such that a human-caused dimension of disaster becomes unavoidably clear. Race, class, and poverty are factors that influence human vulnerability to natural disasters (as well as many other factors) by increasing the exposure of marginalized groups and communities within a society and limiting their ability to recover from a disaster.
The websites of the Children’s groups listed below contain information regarding the 2016 Louisiana flooding events.

Children’s Health Fund

New York, NY

The Baton Rouge Children’s Health Project was initially created as a response to the urgent pediatric health care needs in the aftermath of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. The project now provides critically needed medical and mental health services to underserved children and families in the Baton Rouge area. The project provides comprehensive and continuous care employing a multidisciplinary approach – providing mental health services, case management, and disease prevention education. Referrals for sub-specialty and inpatient care are arranged as needed. Specially trained staff brings services to schools and other communities that lack access to health care in Baton Rouge. Current service sites include Wedgewood Elementary School, Wildwood Elementary School, Ryan Elementary School, Sharon Hills Elementary School, Brownsfields Elementary School, Park Elementary School, White Hills Elementary School, Capital Middle School, McKinley Magnet High School, and THRIVE Academy.

Children’s Health Fund has conducted groundbreaking research on the mental health effects of Hurricane Katrina in 2006. The survey found that mental health needs had skyrocketed while local resources remained limited. Our Community Support and Resiliency Program has helped fill that need. The program has also provided critically needed professional support and training for mental health providers throughout Mississippi and Louisiana. We have collaborated with an internationally recognized organization to bring art therapy programs for children in post-disaster situations to the Gulf. In addition, we have provided specially designed “Coping Boxes” to children affected by Hurricane Katrina and Superstorm Sandy as a tangible, therapeutic tool to help in their developmental and psychodynamic therapy.

In partnership with the American Red Cross, LATAN provides durable medical equipment, medical supplies, home accessibility assessments, and assistive smoke alarms to Louisiana residents with functional limitations or disabilities affected by the August 2016 floods. Individuals who were living in any of the 26 parishes designated by FEMA Disaster Response #4277 at the time of the flooding are invited to contact LATAN to inquire about assistive devices and equipment that may be available to them at no cost. LATAN will provide the necessary assessments, fittings, and delivery of devices, and each resident will also receive free installation of a complimentary smoke alarm through the American Red Cross's Home Fire Campaign. In addition, all participants will have the opportunity to have their homes assessed for accessibility and Universal Design by a Certified Aging-in-Place Specialist. Additionally, in the upcoming months LATAN and its partner agencies and organizations in the Louisiana Emergency Management Disability and Aging Coalition (EMDAC), will provide emergency preparedness presentations focused on individuals with functional limitations and disabilities to organizations, agencies, caregivers, and individuals, as well as to state emergency managers. LATAN and EMDAC will also spearhead the pre-staging of assistive devices, durable medical equipment, and medical supplies in emergency shelters throughout the flood-impacted region. These preparedness activities offer yet another opportunity to address issues and resolve concerns of flood survivors, with the long-term goal of making Louisiana residents with functional limitations and disabilities more resilient and better prepared for any disaster that may strike.

HOPE Ministries

Baton Rouge, LA
http://www.hopeworksbr.com/

Since opening its doors in June of 2003, HOPE has served thousands of individuals by carrying out our mission to prevent homelessness and promote self-sufficiency and dignity. HOPE began as a merger of an onsite food pantry and a mentoring program to HUD transitional housing residents. In 2004, in partnership with the Greater Baton Rouge Food Bank, HOPE’s pantry was converted into the first and only client choice food pantry in Baton Rouge. In 2005, as a result of both the need and opportunities created by Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, our programs were expanded to include an adult education component that has proven to be fundamental in attaining our mission. HOPE also identified a need for citizen education on poverty and the effects poverty has on a community. Since 2009, HOPE’s team has educated people from across the state and from a variety of organizations and companies on the causes of poverty and its influence on how our community looks, feels, and acts. Through HOPE’s programs, our board, team, and volunteers help meet needs and move people forward.

During times of disaster, HOPE becomes an immediate disaster relief center providing water, food, cleaning supplies, and other household items needed by the community. HOPE also helps with FEMA and DSNAP benefits and provides extensive referral services for those seeking help. During the great flood of 2016 HOPE provided assistance to 1st responders and those being evacuated from their homes. Additionally, HOPE team members worked to help restore several of the flooded homes in the community, working with Habitat for Humanity, Mid-City Redevelopment Alliance, Rebuilding Together Baton Rouge and the St. Bernard Project. HOPE continues to serve the most impoverished community through recovery, food distribution, and workforce engagement.

We provided the leadership on understanding the issues that low literate adults face and their unique needs. Our curriculum specialist and plain language experts drafted the curriculum, so that the language was simple and basic. Post-Katrina, we have also conducted trainings with Road Home and other disaster relief organizations on understanding literacy challenges of residents and making sure that their process is communicated in a manner that was understandable. We have also helped numerous agencies and relief efforts create and revise forms at a reading level (6th grade) that the general community could understand and adequately complete.”

Common attitudes and beliefs inform behaviors within our culture that normalize excuse, condone and perpetuate sexual trauma. Sexual trauma prevention requires a multi-level approach including primary prevention, therapeutic intervention, and supportive response. In the aftermath of the Great Floods of 2016, Governor John Bel Edwards of the State of Louisiana established the ‘Restore Louisiana Task Force’ to oversee the recovery process. The Task Force created six work groups focusing on different aspects of recovery that correspond with the Federal government’s Recovery Support Functions, as defined in the National Disaster Recovery Framework (NDRF).

The Recovery Support Functions (RSFs) comprise the coordinating structure for key functional areas of assistance in the National Disaster Recovery Framework (NDRF). Their purpose is to support state and local governments by facilitating problem solving, improving access to resources, and by fostering coordination among State and Federal agencies, nongovernmental partners, and stakeholders.

The RSFs are organized into six manageable components that help facilitate local stakeholder participation and promote intergovernmental and public-private partnerships. An additional objective is to encourage and complement investments and contributions from the philanthropic sector and the business community; individuals; and voluntary, faith-based, and community organizations. RSF activities assist communities to accelerate the process of recovery, redevelopment, and revitalization.

Louisiana Environmental Action Network (LEAN)
https://leanweb.org/

The purpose of the Louisiana Environmental Action Network (LEAN) is to foster cooperation and communication between individual citizens and corporate and government organizations in an effort to assess and mend the environmental problems in Louisiana. LEAN’s goal is the creation and maintenance of a cleaner and healthier environment for all of the inhabitants of this state. For nearly 30 years, LEAN has fought to safeguard not just Louisiana’s scenic beauty, wildlife and culture but more importantly those underserved citizens that don’t have a voice. At the core of LEAN’s work is the assistance we provide communities in dealing with their environmental challenges. LEAN has assisted communities with concerns involving environmental and health related impacts from air pollution, hazardous waste, water pollution, landfills, injection wells, municipal water treatment facilities, private water systems, paper mills, industrial incinerators, natural disasters and industrial accidents, to name a few. LEAN services include: 1) Assessing, documenting, and monitoring environmental concerns; 2) Educating individuals, communities, organizations, businesses and elected officials about environmental challenges in Louisiana; 3) Organizational support and leadership development for communities organizing around a local environmental issue; 4) Technical support to individuals and communities working to resolve an environmental concern. Examples of technical support include: A) Permit review; B) Drafting public comments; C) Analysis of environmental data; D) Chemical sampling (air, water, soil, biota); E) Multi-media production of educational resources specific to Louisiana’s environmental challenges; F) Promoting public participation in government processes related to environmental decision making; G) Facilitating dialogue and conflict resolution between communities, private industry and government agencies; and H) Outreach and advocacy with local, national and international media outlets.

“The Delta Chapter is 3,000 of your neighbors supporting the work of the Sierra Club in Louisiana. We advance the cause of protecting Louisiana's environment in a variety of ways, including sponsoring a campaign to take Mercury out of the environment, identifying and protecting the state's scenic rivers, and working to save the cypress, and keep the Atchafalaya Basin – America’s greatest river swamp – wet and wild. We work to raise public awareness about the effects of human caused climate change and to develop clean energy solutions. We advise the state legislature in Baton Rouge on issues related to public health and the environment. In addition, we conduct outings and informational events so that our members and friends can get outside and enjoy our beautiful state.”

Louisiana Foundations with Flood Relief Funds
Many community, corporate, and family foundations in the State of Louisiana became deeply involved in relief and recovery after the devastating floods of March and August 2016. Immediately, foundation staff began assessing critical needs. Flood Relief Funds were established by a number of donor organizations to speed support to the nonprofit organizations serving thousands of survivors. This section of the Resource Guide lists some of these funds and points of contact for those interested in supporting the desperate need for resources present in Louisiana as the disaster continues, but awareness of needs slowly begins to wane outside the area of impact.

Philanthropic groups also convened key stakeholders to the recovery process to discuss relief and recovery needs. Most began by first supporting organizations providing relief and now are turning their attention to longer-term recovery efforts, particularly in the areas of housing and the mental health needs of flood survivors, all issues that will continue to be a priority in the months and years ahead. Philanthropy can play a key role in helping to sustain and expand the capacity of those nonprofit organizations that are playing a key role in recovery efforts longer-term and provide an excellent place for donors to provide support to unmet needs across the state.

United Way of Northeast Louisiana
Monroe, LA
http://www.unitedwaynela.org

United Way of Northeast Louisiana’s role in a disaster is two-fold. We are a communicator and a connector. We communicate with and connect the people in need of the direct services, as well as communicate with and connect nonprofits, churches, governmental agencies to volunteers and resources needed to serve the community's needs. United Way of Northeast Louisiana supports the local disaster efforts of United Way partner agencies who are on the front lines of disaster response: the American Red Cross, Food Bank of Northeast Louisiana, and Salvation Army. United Way of Northeast Louisiana 211 is a free service that connects people to information and resources in the community, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Between March 9 and March 17, 2016, United Way of Northeast Louisiana 211 answered 14,613 calls. United Way of Northeast Louisiana 211 was the official connection for residents to report damage reports to the Office of Homeland Security and Emergency Preparedness, helping them expedite damage assessments that ultimately lead to FEMA disaster assistance being activated. United Way Volunteer Community Connection connects volunteers to flood response and recovery organizations who need them most. The Flood Response & Recovery Daily Bulletin was created in partnership with the Monroe Chamber of Commerce and the West Monroe-West Ouachita Chamber of Commerce to provide a continually updated list of available resources in the community. The United Way of Northeast Louisiana Flood Response and Recovery Fund, managed by United Way volunteers, will disburse funds to local agencies and organizations to support immediate needs, as well as long-term recovery efforts, in the coming days. All funds received will be used for flood response and recovery efforts. Every dollar contributed to the United Way of Northeast Louisiana Flood Response and Recovery Fund will be used for flood disaster relief and recovery in Northeast Louisiana. No portion of contributions will be used for overhead or administration.

smaller communities. Grants are awarded for the following services: Mass Shelter; Mass Feeding; Other Food; Rent/Mortgage Assistance; Utility Assistance; and Temporary Housing.
